Help preserve the history of the postal system with your personal tales of the day to day happenings now and going back to the turn of the century. Trivia, short stories from Postmasters, PMRs, OICs and carriers are welcome, along with recipes that came with the territory of being important public servants at post offices in communities all across the United States. Please include your name, address, phone and e-mail along with your submission. You will be credited in the book and a gift copy will be provided to all contributors; no materials submitted can be returned, and submission provides permission to print your story or recipe.

Deadline for consideration will be May 15, 2009.

The 6 x 9-inch book will be published for the fall book market and will be made available on Amazon.com as well as through area booksellers.
